

Where to Eat on Thanksgiving Day in San Diego

Skip the stress; someone else can make the turkey

by Phaedra Cook | Updated Nov 6, 2018, 8:37am PST

Some people groove on using every pot and pan in the house to make a worthy Thanksgiving Day spread. Others would like to enjoy it as an actual day of rest and let the real pros handle the cooking — not to mention the mountain of dishes. (Who wants to clean the kitchen after a big meal like that, anyway?)

This year in San Diego, there are plenty of restaurants keeping the doors open on the holiday to show off Thanksgiving menus that have been carefully planned for weeks. The options include tender turkey, stuffing, gravy, sides and, of course, pies. In addition, there are vegetarian options, vegan meals, and decadent meat choices for those who just don't like turkey.

14. Farmer's Bottega Neighborhood Restaurant - Mission Hills

860 W Washington St
San Diego, CA 92103
(619) 458-9929

Visit Website

The Mission Hills restaurant is offering its three-course Thanksgiving dinner for $50 for adults with $15 optional wine pairings from 4 to 9 p.m. Starters include pumpkin soup and house specialty dish “Burnt Carrots” with local avocado, red onion, cilantro and feta and citrus thyme vinaigrette. Along with a traditional roasted turkey plate, the main dishes include butternut squash ravioli with brown butter sage and fresh Parmesan and duck confit gnocchi. The full menu is available online. Guests 12 and younger can make selections from a kid-friendly menu for $15 each. The owners’ other restaurants, Farmer’s Table, with locations in La Mesa, Little Italy and Bay Park, are offering a similar menu for $42 per adult and $20 per child.

Courtesy photo